Investing in the sustainability movement: an alternative approach.

APPROACH

Equity long/short.

Sustainability is the defining principle of today's world and is a key driver of long-term value creation. Understanding sustainability issues is critical in distinguishing advantaged versus challenged business models and uncovering both risks and opportunities.

This Sub-Fund adopts a "long/short" approach to sustainable investing. It aims to benefit from both the potential future growth of well-positioned companies (via "long" positions) and the future weak performance of firms that are ill-equipped for the sustainability movement (via "short" positions).

The approach also aims to offer investors a smoother returns path - one that is not closely tied to the movements of stock markets.¹

¹ There can be no assurance that the Sub-Fund's investment objective will be achieved or that there will be a return on capital or that a substantial loss will not be incurred.

Key investment themes

Food quality and security
Companies involved in nutrition, novel production techniques and crop yield enhancement;
The 'vegetalisation' of diets

An ageing population
Firms providing medical devices and services, specialised nutrition, incontinence companies

Chemical development
Enabling lower resource intensity or green chemistry, recycling technologies and bioplastics

The future of mobility
Businesses involved in emissions control, energy efficiency, hydrogen as a storage solution for intermittent renewable electricity

Why invest?

Our alternative approach not only looks to take advantage of firms that are well positioned from long-term sustainability trends, but also from those that are poorly positioned.

“ We believe a long-term approach is vital for investing in the global sustainability movement.

Broad investment opportunities

In a world where growth can be scarce, we believe that companies strategically positioned to address key environmental and social challenges will be the biggest beneficiaries in the market.

We also believe that the majority of corporate failures in public equity markets are related to governance and management issues.

While many investors take a short-term view on investing, we take a long-term approach. We carry out deep, fundamental, bottom up analysis which looks to identify and measure significant long-term drivers of company valuation, including less tangible environmental, social and/or governance factors.

A research-intensive, alternative approach

The TerreNeuve team aims to uncover winners with genuine growth potential, and to identify the laggards in tomorrow's world. Very few peers, if any, are implementing a sustainability focused strategy in a long/short format. The team have been doing so for almost a decade.

By taking long and short positions in the same sectors they aim to mitigate risk and reduce overall market exposure, creating a 'market neutral' portfolio.

Examples of our sustainable investing themes

Food quality and security

Health and well-being is one area where the movement towards a more sustainable world is most evident. The adoption of a healthy diet is becoming increasingly important for many developing nations around the world. In addition, Millennials account for a large proportion of the growing demand for healthy, responsibly resourced and packaged products – we see an opportunity in companies supporting this trend.¹

Mobility in future cities

Hydrogen offers tremendous potential, firstly as a zero carbon superfuel to power the next mobility revolution, and secondly as a storage solution for intermittent renewable electricity. This technology is already being adopted globally and we believe that companies at the forefront of this energy revolution offer a compelling investment opportunity.²

Investment strategy and philosophy

At Lombard Odier Investment Managers, we believe sustainability will drive future return potential.¹

1. Deep sector expertise

The Sub-Fund operates with a sector specialist approach focusing on Consumer Discretionary, Consumer Staples, Materials and Medtech. These sectors are global in nature allowing the team to leverage their insights gained in European markets across the globe.

The investment team have covered their focus stocks for their entire careers and have developed meaningful corporate relationships. This is a key element of the company due diligence process and provides them with valuable insights into wider sectoral trends.

2. Environmental, Social and Governance analysis

The team utilises a proprietary sustainability rating system it has developed which forms an integral part of idea generation and the overall investment process.

The sustainability rating system acts as an extended company due diligence process ensuring the team carry out analysis on all the ESG factors they deem material to the investment case.

A key pillar of the team's research is analysing a company's portfolio of goods and services and how they align with wider Environmental and Social trends or themes.

3. Sustainability as a return driver

In a world where growth is scarce and often overestimated, we believe true growth companies will be increasingly rewarded by the market.

Companies strategically positioned to address key environmental and social challenges may be amongst the biggest beneficiaries.

Conversely, understanding challenged business models should facilitate the avoidance of value traps and offers opportunities on the short side.

Understanding the risks and reward profile & glossary

This indicator (SRRI) represents the annualised historical volatility of the Sub-Fund over a 5-year period. Where there are less than 5 years' worth of data, missing returns are simulated using an appropriate benchmark. The SRRI may change over time and should not be used as an indicator of future risk or returns. Even the lowest risk classification does not imply that the Sub-Fund is risk-free or that capital is necessarily guaranteed or protected.

The Sub-Fund primarily invests in a diversified portfolio of shares issued by companies worldwide (including Emerging Markets). Portfolio volatility is reduced as the Sub-Fund implements several long/short strategies which have their focus on different economic sectors while limiting concentration risk.

The following risks may be materially relevant but may not always be adequately captured by the synthetic risk indicator and may cause additional loss:

Counterparty risk: When a fund is backed by a guarantee from a third party, or where its investment exposure is obtained to a material degree through one or more contracts with a counterparty, there could be a material risk that the counterparty to the transactions will fail to honor its contractual obligations. This may result in a financial loss to the Fund.

Risks linked to the use of derivatives and financial techniques: Derivatives and other financial techniques used substantially to obtain, increase or reduce exposure to assets may be difficult to value, may generate leverage, and may not yield the anticipated results. All of this could be detrimental to fund performance.

Active management risk: Active management relies on anticipating various market developments and/or security selection. There is a risk at any given time that the fund may not be invested in the highest performing markets or securities. The fund's net asset value may also decline.

Please also pay attention to the inherent risks of this Sub-Fund, such as for instance:

- Risks related to Equities;
- Risks related to Fixed-Income Securities; and
- Small and Medium Sized Capitalisations

Before taking any investment decision, please read the latest version of the Prospectus, the articles of incorporation, the Key Investor Information Documents (KIIDs) and the latest annual report and semi-annual report. Please pay particular attention to Appendix B "Risk Factors Annex" of the Prospectus.

Towards sustainability label is based on specific quantitative and qualitative rules referred as Quality Standards. It requires exclusion of the financing of a limited number of practices that are widely regarded as unsustainable. The quality standard does not stipulate how the requirements should be fulfilled in practice: this is left to the expertise of the product manager. The standard provides a mix of exclusion, impact, engagement, transparency and accountability. The balance of these elements and the specific requirements associated, will evolve and be adapted over time to reflect the evolving expectations of investors and the needs of society, and the legislative translation of these needs and expectations. As such, the quality standard is not fixed and shall be evaluated regularly in a multi-stakeholder context. Independent supervision by the Central Labeling Agency (CLA) protects the integrity of the quality standard and the label, and will manage their continuing development.
